"PREPARED BY AND FOR THE WALT DISNEY WORLD CAST"

MARCH 12, 1982

EPCOT CENTER IN HIGH GEAR

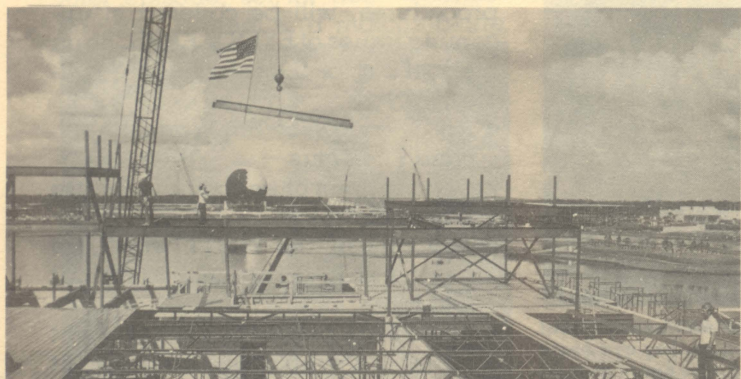

STAFFING PLAN PROGRESSES

The opening of Epcot Center is only 203 days away as you read this, and construction workers have turned their efforts toward the project's details now — painting, sculpting, and literally creating Walt Disney's greatest dream.

The catch phrase on the construction site these days is "test and adjust" as many of the World Showcase and Future World complexes approach this final phase of construction. Test and adjust begins after the completion of show installation in each pavilion, and according to Norm Doerges, Director/PICO, concludes with the inspection of each aspect and detail of a pavilion by key management members like Marty Sklar, Vice President/Creative Development, WED, and John Hench, Sr. Vice President/WED. Only after this group is confident that a project is acceptable show quality will guests see the show.

Briefly, test and adjust activities are performed by WED/MAPO disciplines and the WDW Maintenance, adjusting and programming all show equipment, animation, projectors, lighting, artwork, curtains, screens, automatic doors . . . virtually everything inside the walls of the building . . . until the test and adjust team deems everything ready for the guests to see.

The World of Motion and the Universe of Energy will be the first to undergo this complex period of adjustment beginning March 15. The rest of the projects in Future World are scheduled for test and adjust beginning in April, including the monorail system, which begins operating May 27. A few details from Future World:

High atop American Adventure, the support steelwork for the clock (left) and light (right) towers nears an end. On the level below, the VIP room for American Express and Coca Cola will be built.

The Orient has arrived in Central Florida proven by this Japanese structure. The building in the foreground will house the Mitsukoshi Department store on the first level and a restaurant on the second. In the steel structure behind and to the right, guests will view the story of Japan via an Audioanimatronic film and other special effects, and they can also sip Japan's traditional refreshment in the tea room.

- Spaceship Earth's set installation progresses from the top scene down, and construction workers are currently installing in the Islamic area, the cave scene, the Egyptian temple, and the Phoenicians, Greek Theatre and Roman Road sequences.
- In The Land, special effect sand equipment for the desert scene, where guests will observe a simulated but very lifelike desert sandstorm, is now in place.
- The utilidor of the east side of CommuniCore is finished, and work on the west side continues. Show equipment in Epcot Central has been installed and tested.

Moving to World Showcase, test and adjust periods are scheduled for two pavilions in May, three in June, and the rest to follow. Regarding individual pavilions:

- Masonry work on the outside of the American Adventure is near completion and construction workers are progressing on the fiberglass ornamentation. Test and adjust for the giant, 300,000 pound show action carriage and fixed lifts located underneath the show area is in progress.
- The France pavilion is ahead of schedule, with work continuing at present on the exterior architectural ornamentation. The pavilion will be complete at the end of July.
- With steel work complete and the exterior framing and sheathing in progress, the Japan pavilion begins taking shape. In front of the building, the five tiers making up the pagoda are being assembled.

Meanwhile, another important building phase of Epcot Center progresses; a plan just as crucial to the project as the construction itself. It's Manpower Planning, the "building" of cast members to staff the nearly 3,000 positions that Epcot Center will require for opening day.

Manpower Planning plays a part from the very beginning in the development of any project ... and Epcot Center is no exception. In early developmental stages, labor requirements were considered for the design of Epcot Center's attractions, restaurants, and shops. As designs were finalized, the management teams of each division invested endless hours of planning, organization, and evaluation to weigh every option for staffing Epcot Center. Then, since opening day is rapidly approaching, each division has appointed a Manpower Coordinator who works with management to determine how many onstage and backstage cast members are needed for the shops, attractions, restaurants, offices ... in short, all the new positions in Epcot Center.

But Manpower Planning goes beyond the divisional level. The Manpower Planning Department, part of the Employee Relations Division, has been established to centralize and orchestrate the divisions' needs into a company master plan.

John Brownlee, Manager of Manpower Planning, meets regularly with Bill Sullivan and the Epcot Center Project Development team, the division coordinators and training advisors to coordinate staffing needs, timetables, communication plans, and every other detail of Manpower Planning.

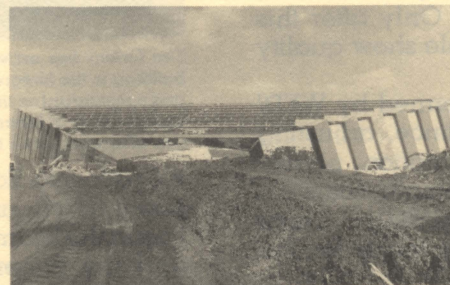

As you might expect, the most logical and economical way to approach Epcot Center Manpower Planning is to staff Epcot Center as an "extension" of existing divisions. Simply said, the Operations Division will give Operations hosts and hostesses the first opportunity to transfer to Operations positions in Epcot Center; Merchandise hosts and hostesses will be the first to transfer to Epcot Center Merchandise positions; and so on. Interdivisional transfers will then be handled through the Manpower Planning coordinators and CPPO. Casting will then hire new cast members to fill vacancies left as a result of the transfer process.

While rockwork continues on the canyon at the Canada pavilion, the Chateau Laurier looms above. Pipes located among the rocks will supply water to a cascading waterfall. If the pavilion was 100 percent complete, you would be peering from the circlevision theatre.

The Italy recreated in World Showcase comes complete with a taste of Venice. Underneath, romantic gondolas poled by gondoliers will pass. In the distance, notice the progress of Spaceship Earth's exterior panels.

The Universe of Energy building stands essentially complete, and work continues on the exterior with the installation of mirrors and solar collectors, which you can see on the top of the structure.

Construction crews have prepared these buildings at the United Kingdom pavilion so they can begin thatching the roofs. On the left is the biscuit shop, on the right, the Royal Doulton China shop.

EYES AND EARS will inform you of details of this entire procedure over the next few months.

The staffing timetable is very similar to the schedule used just before Walt Disney World opened. At that time, interviews were held during the summer of 1971, with most cast members starting to work in August and September of that year. In light of a similar timetable for Epcot Center, the transfer process will begin later in the spring and continue into summer, with most moves occurring in September.

Our 10-year reputation as the world's number one vacation destination is based on the quality and excellence of the Walt Disney World of today. In order to maintain the Disney standards of excellence through Walt Disney World, the plan is to create a balanced distribution of seasoned pros providing leadership and continuity throughout the Magic Kingdom, Epcot Center, the resorts, and every other part of Walt Disney World.

Additional updates on all aspects of Epcot Center, including transfer procedures, will be covered in upcoming issues of EYES & EARS. Be on the lookout for these and other articles.

"It Takes People"

Wally presented Jack with a letter praising his actions during the Security search. At the ceremony, fellow Security Investigators teased Jack that having his picture in the EYES & EARS "would blow his cover!"

After the ceremony, Bob Matheison, Vice President/Operations, Mark, Tina, Larry Slocum, Director/Food Operations, and Wally, posed for EYES & EARS. Wally conveyed deep appreciation on behalf of American Express to Tina and Mark for helping recover the traveler's checks.

Our hats go off this week to three cast members honored recently for the quick thinking and actions they displayed during a forgery attempt in the Magic Kingdom.

At about 6 p.m. on New Year's Eve, 1981, Tina Leonard, a Food and Beverage Hostess in the Magic Kingdom, accepted an American Express traveler's check from a woman patronizing the Round Table in Fantasyland. "I took one look at the signatures, and it was obvious it was a forgery," Tina explained. She immediately contacted Security and gave them a complete description of the woman passing the traveler's check and her female companion.

Thanks to Tina's observance, Jack Porter of WDW Security Investigations, coordinated a property-wide search after confirming with the local American Express office that the checks were in fact stolen. One of the procedures he followed involved producing a flyer describing the woman and the forged traveler's check.

This flyer caught the attention of Mark Hendricks, who was working in the Sunshine Tree Terrace that evening. "I'd read the flyer and I recognized the name on the traveler's check," Mark said. He took the check, called Security, and dispatched someone to follow the two women. Within a short time, Security apprehended the pair.

At a ceremony held last week honoring Tina, Mark and Jack, Wally Fields of American Express presented both Tina and Mark with checks for $100 for their efforts in locating the stolen traveler's checks. Wally also gave Jack a letter of commendation for his successful search operation.

These three cast members deserve special recognition for handling this situation and displaying the utmost in WDW teamwork. Congratulations to each of you for a job well done.

ST. PAT'S EMPLOYEE SALE

It's Employee Sale time again. Yes, sir, March 17 is the day, St. Pat's as a matter of fact, and those of you who miss the sale will have more to be green about than just the holiday! You'll envy those who bid for the trucks on sale and those who buy the many other items, including the lost and found articles that have collected since the last sale.

Please remember that Property Control offers the Employee Sale for WDW cast members and their spouses only, and not for dependent children, friends, or other relatives. All spouses must present a Main Gate Pass and another valid ID. These items are intended for private Don't miss the chance to buy items at more than reduced rates.

Different tires require different pressures for maximum performance. P-metric radial steel-belted tires need 35 pounds of pressure to perform properly and prevent tire tread separation. To find out if you have P-metric tires on your car, take a good look at them. If the letter "P" appears on the tire in front of the tire size, you have P-metric radials and should insure that you maintain 35 pounds of pressure in the tires.

LET'S GET IN SHAPE FOR THE ST. PAT'S ROAD RACE

The Mickey's Runners Club is hosting a fun run at Little Lake Bryan Tuesday, March 16, starting at 5:30 p.m. Plan on meeting at the Lake and we'll drive to Sea World. VOLLEYBALL VOLLEYS

Another Tuesday has come and gone at Little Lake Bryan, and that means that volleyballs have been flying every which-a-way! Some of the teams that did not have all the experience this year have created surprises and very close matches in the early weeks.

Action that occurred on Tuesday, March 2, found one of the new teams on the block, the Samoan Spikers, spiking their way to a 15-8, 15-7 win over the Wed-Netters. In a three-game match, Environmental Protection won over the stubborn Sand Sharks 15-13, 6-15, and 15-11. The Sandspurs proved to be a thorn in the side of the Big Spender$, as they won 15-4 and 15-2. Other action found Liberty Tree over Transportation 15-1 and 15-11 and Watercraft losing their first game of the year but persevering as they sailed by Systems 15-7, 14-16, and 15-2.

If you have never seen beach volleyball, come on out to Little Lake Bryan and cheer your team on.
